

Deductive and Inductive Probabilistic Programming

Fabrizio Riguzzi

Dipartimento di Ingegneria – University of Ferrara
Via Saragat 1, I-44122, Ferrara, Italy

Abstract. Probabilistic programming (PP) is available in two different variants: imperative/functional and logic. These two variants have complementary strengths and mostly separate communities. In this talk I will discuss how most strengths of inference for imperative/functional PP can be included in PLP. Moreover, I will show that PLP is particularly suitable for inductive reasoning.