

A Service-Oriented Infrastructure for Adaptive Systems based on Specification-Carrying Code

Giovanna Di Marzo Serugendo

Birkbeck College (University of London)

Abstract

"Specification-Carrying Code" allows communication and semantic interoperability among autonomous software entities: the software carries a formal description of its behaviour and communication occurs without APIs. This presentation discusses the notion of specification-carrying code, its supporting infrastructure, and presents a series of applications to which this technique applies.